WGNO NEWS WITH A TWIST HOSTS TAMICA LEE AND LEBRON JOSEPH BROADCAST LIVE FROM THE HISTORIC L&N DEPOT IN BAY ST. LOUIS. BELOW, THE BAY RATZ MARCHING BATTERY PERFORMS FOR THE CAMERAS.

BY GEOFF BELCHER

The WGNO Live "News With a Twist" crew made its fourth annual trek to the historic L&N Depot in Bay St. Louis on Wednesday to promote the Bay and the rest of Hancock County to its New Orleans-area viewers.

"News With a Twist is always fun," Brian Wilemon, the founder and "Drummer in Chief" of the Bay Ratz Marching Battery told the WGNO "purple shirt" crew.

"It's really nice to have you guys over from New Orleans. We always enjoy having you."

Wilemon and the Bay Ratz performed during the telecast, in between segments by Twist hosts Tamica Lee and LeBron Joseph, who interacted with the enthusiastic crowd at the Depot and introduced segments filmed at various places around Hancock County.

One of those segments was on the Bay Ratz themselves, encouraging viewers to "listen to the beat of Bay St. Louis."

Another featured "Hoppy Smith," golf pro at the Diamondhead Country Club, and took WGNO viewers on a tour of Diamondhead.

Another featured 10-year-old Bay native Connor Fanberg, "one of the best sail boat captains in the country."

The event was arranged by the Hancock County Tourism Bureau to attract New Orleans-area residents to all the fun, food, culture and shopping available in Hancock County.

Three years later, Waveland police still seeking answers in hit & run death of Shelby Luciano

BY GEOFF BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

Monday will be the third anniversary of the tragic hit-and-run death of 23-year-old Shelby Luciano, and police say they still hope someone will come forward to tell what happened.

Waveland Police Chief David Allen and Shelby's mother, Rose Foss Luciano, marked the occasion on Friday with a press conference at the site of Shelby's death and a renewed plea for answers.

"Someone out there knows something," Allen said during the press conference Friday. "It's a powerful thing that happened ... and we'd really like to bring this to a conclusion."

Shelby was walking on Waveland Avenue some time between 1 a.m. and 4 a.m. on June 18, 2015, when she was struck by a large vehicle. The driver apparently did not stop, and a passing motorist found her body at about 6:30 a.m.

Shortly after Shelby's death, rumors began circulating that Shelby was killed elsewhere and dumped at the scene. The rumors grew wilder after her former boyfriend was found murdered a few days later, but police determined there was no connection between the two deaths.

"Based on the mechanisms of the investigation, on the autopsy and the evidence at the scene," Allen said, "we're confident it was a vehicle strike. ... whether it was a drunk driver (or something else), we really don't know. ... We know it was relatively large vehicle. Beyond that, we really don't have a lot of information."

Allen said that his department and officers from other jurisdictions followed more than 100 leads and inspected more than 50 vehicles trying to find who was responsible, to no avail.

To this day, he said, tips still come in from time to time, but nothing yet has led to the truth of what happened that night.

Allen said it is vital to find the truth.

Qualifying begins Monday for Waveland municipal elections

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE

The qualifying period for Waveland's 2018 elections begins Monday, June 18.

The candidate qualifying paperwork is now available at city hall in the city clerk's office for the following municipal offices: Mayor, Ward 1 Alderman, Ward 2 Alderman, Ward 3 Alderman, Ward 4 Alderman, Democratic Executive Committee (three positions), and Republican Executive Committee (three positions).

City Clerk Lisa Planchard said party candidates in primary elections pay a $10 fee.

Candidates running as independents must file a petition with the clerk's office that has at least 50 signatures from qualified voters of a municipality or ward, Planchard said. If running for the mayor spot, the candidate can obtain signatures from the entire city, she added.

Bay named fourth in 'Most Beautiful Towns in America'

BY GEOFF BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

The online travel service Expedia.com has named Bay St. Louis as one of its "Most Beautiful Towns in America."

"We're thrilled that such a reputable leader in the travel industry has recognized what we've always known," Myrna Green, executive director of the Hancock County Tourism Bureau, said this week. "Our city truly is a beautiful and charming destination, and we invite and encourage everyone to visit us and see for themselves."

"Come play on the Bay!"

"Of course, beauty is subjective, but there are some things on which we can all agree," according to Expedia's "Viewfinder" travel blogger Chloe Mulliner. "A charming downtown oozing with character, sparkling waves under the glow of a sunset, and wide-open ranges void of human handprints are all undeniably beautiful in their own ways.

"Not too long ago, we curated a list of our favorite beautiful towns in America, and we're back at it again. From endearing architecture and preserved nature trails to serene coastlines and mountaintop views, we're bringing you even more pretty towns and cities from sea to shining sea."

Bay St. Louis ranks number four on this year's list of thirty "Most Beautiful Towns," behind number one, Big Bear Lake, Calif.; two, Staunton, Va.; and three, Hanover, N.H.

"You've heard being by the water is good for the soul and Bay St. Louis is the perfect place to test it," according to Mulliner.

"Surrounded by the bay and marshlands, this pretty little coastal town is a sailor's delight. Stroll to the marina and listen for the sound of sailboats creaking against the dock, or build sandcastle masterpieces on the shore at the end of Main Street. You'll find beauty in touring the quirky Gallery 220 Main art gallery, searching for Dayle Lewis' angel trees, and watching the neighbors gather for a chat on the porches of shotgun cottages."

Rounding out the top ten list are number five, Medicine Park, Okla.; six, Thermopolis, Wyo.; seven, Heber City, Ut.; eight, Grand Canyon, Ariz.; nine, Haleiwa, Hawaii; and ten, Grand Lake, Colo.

deserves it, and the whole city of Waveland deserves to know what happened," he said.

Rose Luciano described Shelby as a loving person who volunteered her time at the local animal shelter.

"She loved everybody," Luciano said. "She was a very naive person, but she had a beautiful heart. What happened to her was really unfair.

"A lot of time's, it's overwhelming," she said when a reporter at the conference asked how she continues to deal with Shelby's death, "but I try to keep it in perspective -- the true victim here is Shelby. Her life was stolen from her. She was left here to die alone.

"In the last three years, I have spoken to more people around here who have theories and possible tips. Some of it has been horrible, but some of it has been helpful. ... I would like to believe this was a random accident, but I'm afraid it was probably not a random accident. I would rather it be a random accident -- that would be the lesser of evils."

Luciano said that if it was an accident, she could see forgiving the person who did it.

"I am totally ready to forgive," she said, "I just need that opportunity."

Allen said his department will never stop working on the case until it is solved.

"We will be working on this case forever," he said. "Until it's a closed case, it's an (active) case."

Waveland Mayor Mike Smith also spoke at the event. He praised Rose Luciano's strength and bravery, and the Waveland Police Department's unwavering dedication to solving the case.

Smith said Shelby's death literally hit "close to home" for him -- he lives near where the incident occurred.

Smith said he had just taken office shortly before Shelby was killed, and lamented the fact that there are still no sidewalks on Waveland Avenue. He vowed there would be soon.

"We're about to go out for bids on them within the next month," Smith said. "Before the end of this year, I hope they're done."

If you or someone you know has information that may help determine what happened the night Shelby Luciano was killed, you are urged to call the Waveland Police Department at 228-467-3669 or the Mississippi Coast Crime Stoppers at 877-787-5898.

Rose Luciano said Friday that her family is still offering a $10,000 reward for information that solves the case.

Making choices in a FREE market

I was looking at a credit card receipt the other day at a restaurant. On the receipt, there was a “transaction id.” It was a number with 15 spaces. That’s a lot of space, enough for 999 trillion transactions.

Worldwide there are half a billion credit cards, a number that is increasing rapidly. Even with 15 spaces, we may be needing to add more spaces in the next 50 years.

Each one of those 999 trillion transactions represents a consumer using his or her money to buy something. People don’t easily part with their money. Those transactions represent crucial information about what really matters to people in the marketplace. If you add cash transactions, the number of transactions gets even greater. It is a huge amount of information about what people really want and need.

This is called the free market. Free people making free choices about what to buy. It is the most powerful economic force in the world. To think government bureaucrats sitting in offices could make better decisions about what to produce than the free market is the height of lunacy. That’s why communism failed utterly.

If we want good government, we need to make every effort to use the powerful information of the free market. The more we allow the free market to work, the more responsive and efficient our society and economy will be.

You may think I am stating the obvious, but look at polls that show the number one issue voters want the government to address is jobs. But government cannot create jobs, only the free market can. Yet the Republicans in power in Mississippi have consistently tried to use government subsidies to create jobs. It is as absurd as the communists and doomed for failure.

Thanks to the embarrassing spotlight of the media on botched government job creation subsidies, there hasn’t been a big state subsidy deal since the Continental Tire plant two years ago. Yet in those two years, unemployment has dropped dramatically. As Gov. Phil Bryant said in his most recent state of the union address, we now have 40 thousand jobs looking for workers.

Government didn’t do that. The free market did that. All government has to do is get out of the way and let the free market work.

The City of Jackson is getting a lesson in the power of the free market. Five or six years ago they doubled the price of water rather than modernizing and downsizing the water department. It’s so much easier just to raise prices rather than operate efficiently, especially when you have a government monopoly, or so our city officials thought.

But the free market is far more powerful than the Jackson city council and its water monopoly. The free market responded with force. When prices doubled, people found alternatives.

Of course, the first alternative is to cut back on the use

Justice for D’Ante

Guest Opinion

by Hancock County
NAACP News

June 6th shooting incident at the park where D’Ante Washington was shot in the head and later died in a New Orleans hospital. He was 23 years old.

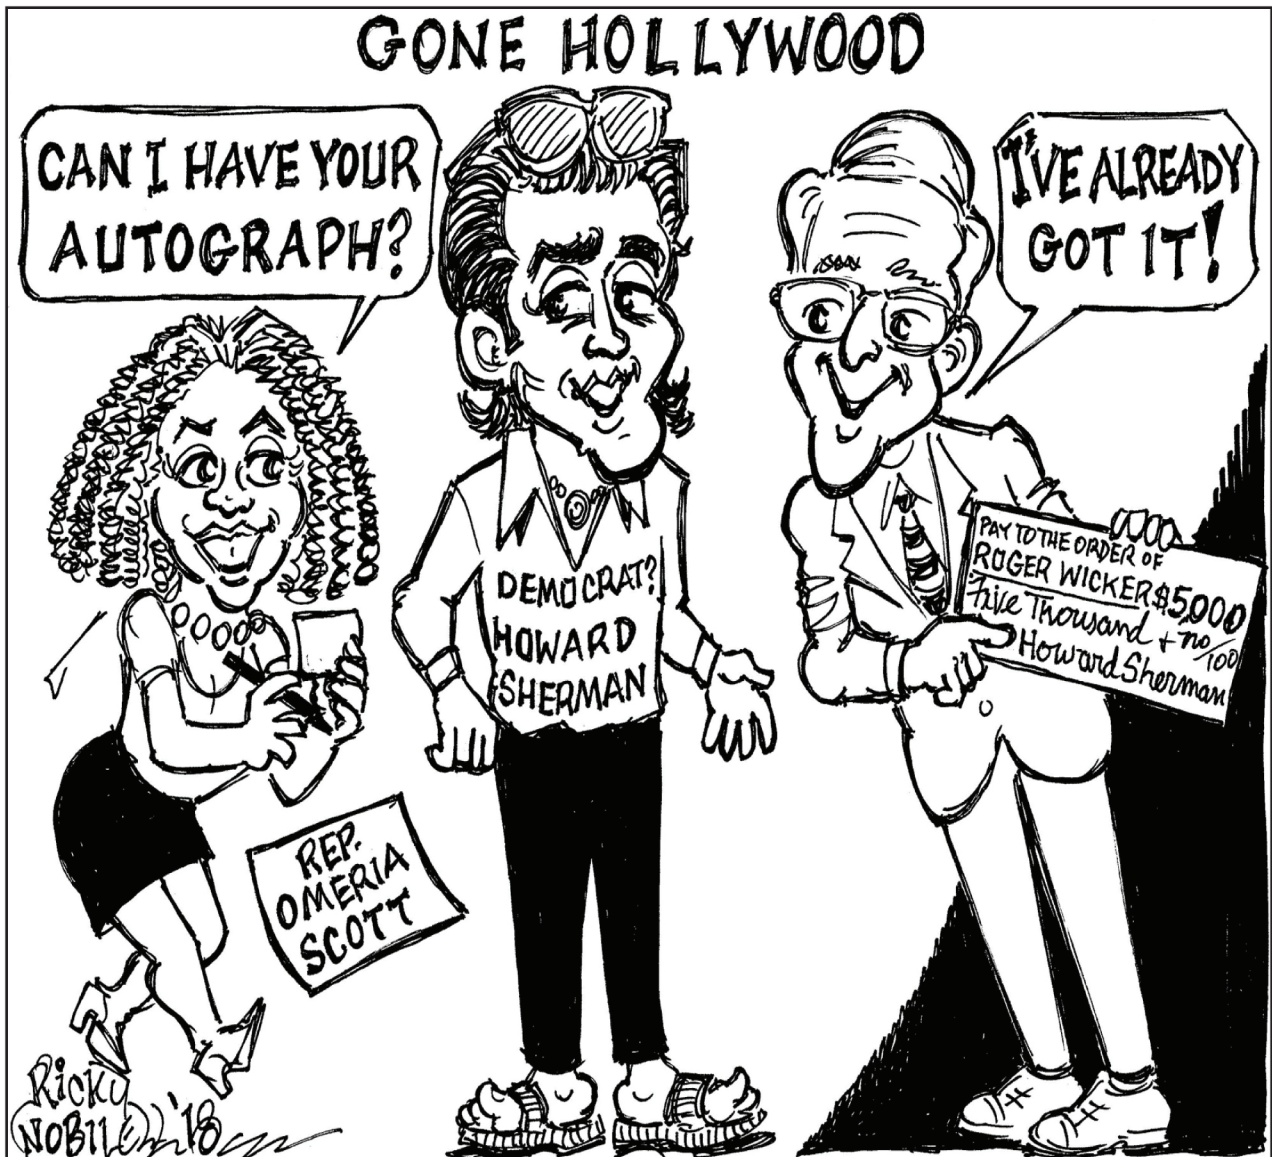

“Bay St. Louis and the 3rd Ward is a viable community,” said Rev. Reed, “but every community has incidences.” Adults were in the park and he believes someone knows who did the shooting but is not willing to come forward adding that one reason is, “They got dirty laundry also!”

Joining our conversation was Thelma Washington whom the Reverend embraced and offered condolences. We all know Ms. Washington as “Cap” who always has something to say, smiles a lot, and is employed by the city. D’Ante was her grandson and she described getting a phone call from her daughter Twanna telling her to “get to the hospital” not knowing then what had happened. “But I did know,” she said, “He was a well liked young man, humble, and didn’t mind doing nothing for no one.” She added that D’Ante had a 19 month old son, Da’Montae, and two parents and a family that loved him.” Cap went on to say that all she wants is justice but not ‘street justice’. She would like someone to come forward and say something – silence is not the answer!

Hancock County NAACP Branch President Gregory Barabino agrees, saying that anyone in the community with any information that would lead to the identity of the perpetrator(s) of this crime, should come forward. The NAACP will work with our neighbors to make our community as safe as possible for our children and all residents. All members of our community are welcome to give their input, thoughts, and ideas for keeping our community safe at the NAACP’s monthly meetings where community issues are addressed.

Wicker Looks Toward Wins in Defense Bill

Passage Would Signal Strong Support for Fleet Buildup, Readiness

The defense authorization act is one of the most consequential bills that Congress considers each year. The bill sets forth a comprehensive plan to meet our military’s needs and to keep our nation safe. Working on this legislation is one of my responsibilities as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee. As chairman of the Seapower Subcommittee, I am particularly engaged with the protection and the promotion of our nation’s maritime interests.

This year’s bill would reverse some of the damage caused by the defense budget cuts of the Obama Administration. The bill would increase defense funding to $716 billion, in keeping with the budget agreement signed by President Trump earlier this year. It also follows the advice of the National Defense Strategy authored by Defense Secretary James Mattis. That strategy seeks to preserve America’s military superiority amid the growing influence of China and Russia.

Congress is working to move the defense bill forward. Passage of the bill would add to the bipartisan tradition that has pushed the bill across the finish line for nearly six decades. Congress is sending the President a thoughtful and coordinated plan to reinvigorate our military and maintain its status as the most capable fighting force in the world. Part of the plan would also include a significant pay raise for our service members – the largest in nine years.

I championed several provisions in this year’s bill to advance our defense strategy and support the role that Mississippi plays in our national defense. These provisions would help achieve:

Maritime strength. The bill would accelerate the buildup of our naval fleet with the authorization of $23 billion for shipbuilding, including the construction of 11 new ships. The pursuit of a 355-ship fleet became our national policy with the passage of my “SHIPS Act” last year. In supporting advanced procurement funding, the bill would help remove uncertainty from the defense industrial base and ultimately save taxpayer dollars.

Naval readiness. The bill would take steps to prevent accidents like those involving the USS John S. McCain and USS Fitzgerald in the Pacific last year, which took the lives of 17 American sailors. The bill would adopt provisions from the “Surface Warfare Enhancement Act,” which I authored with Sen. John McCain and which calls for

VFW Post 2880 earns All-State Honors

VFW Post 2880 commanded by Jerry Peppenger, took home award after award at the Mississippi State VFW Convention on June 9-10. This is the second time in four years the post was awarded All-State Honors. Commander Peppenger stated it was through the outstanding efforts of the post membership that made it possible for such a great year. The post hosted the Viet Nam Combat Veteran Memorial Wall display in September of last year and collected several thousand dollars from the Buddy Poppy program on Memorial Day and Veterans Day that goes a long way in assisting homeless veterans on the Gulf Coast. The post also hosts the Memorial Day dedication to honor the Diamondhead veterans who have passed each year in front of the Diamondhead Country Club. Another key factor is the post increased their membership by 7%. All things considered, it was a banner year and the post is looking forward again to exceling in their efforts.

Market

of water, which happened. But thousand of Jackson residents didn’t stop there. They started straight piping.

Straight piping is simply installing a bypass to the meter. A plumber can do it. Heck, I can do it, thanks to dozens of You Tube videos. Modern technology has eroded the government’s water monopoly.

After rates went up, many big users such as UMMC simply drilled their own wells. Another classic free market response.

It’s even worse. The Jackson water department is so incompetent it has failed to send out bills to about 20 percent of its customers. Many of the bills have been inaccurate, giving customers an excuse not to pay. Collections have plummeted. The city, in the words of public works director Robert Miller, faces “an existential crisis.”

So why didn’t the bills get sent? Why haven’t straight pipers been prosecuted? Again, the lack of a free market. Our water system is run by the city council. They want votes. Giving free water is politically popular. Since the council members don’t get the profits from the water department, there is no incentive to make it profitable.

If the Jackson water system was owned by a private company with shareholders and paid executives on bonus plans, this billing problem would have been nipped in the bud. The executives would have lost their performance bonuses because the shareholders wouldn’t have tolerated a loss of dividends. If management didn’t turn it around, the company would be sold to an organization that could. One way or another, the problem would be solved by the free market.

So what happens now? For Jackson, bankruptcy looms. This happened in Birmingham last decade, Jefferson County, to be exact. The county issued millions of bonds to finance EPA-ordered work. Contractors were bribing officials to get the work. Twenty-one people were convicted.

Water rates skyrocketed. Revenue plummeted. Bonds were in default. The legislature and governor got involved. In the end, federal bankruptcy was the only option. The bond holders got a billion dollar haircut, over a third of the outstanding debt. What a mess.

But despite it all, the government is still running the show through a bankruptcy judge and the free market is working minimally.

Ironically, early water systems were privately owned. The World Bank estimates that, as of 2007, about 270 million people received water from private companies in more than 40 countries, including about 160 million in developed countries and 110 million in developing countries.

The city could seek a private contractor to run the water department, but it would still be a monopoly. Privatization of our prisons hasn’t worked so well. Bidding corruption is a problem.

Facing water bills of $1,200 a month, it might make sense for a Jackson resident to drill their own water well. That might cost $5,000 or so.

It will be interesting to see how Jackson muddles through. Certainly, the overall declining tax base is exposing a variety of problems in the city. A ris-the implementation of better maintenance, training, and management, just as the Navy recommended after its investigations of the collisions.

Guard and Reserve parity. Our nation continues to ask more of our National Guard and Reserve, yet these service members do not have all of the same benefits as those in our military’s active-duty components. The defense bill would correct two of the remaining gaps, by offering bonuses for Guardsmen and Reservists ing tide lifts all ships.

Cities do muddle through and no doubt Jackson will one way or another. Water is basic infrastructure and lends itself to a natural monopoly. Too bad government administration doesn’t work as well as the free market system.

More Junior ROTC programs. As a former ROTC cadet, I can attest to the benefits these programs offer young people during a formative time in their lives. Participation in Junior ROTC at high schools has been linked with higher graduation rates and a lifelong dedication to service and leadership. The defense bill includes my provision to add 100 Junior ROTC programs, giving more high school students in rural and underserved areas the chance to participate.

Mississippi is a valued contributor to our military, home to strong defense manufacturers and many men and women who volunteer to serve. The new defense bill would strengthen those contributions, recognizing that the strategic steps we take now are essential to keeping our nation safe and our troops prepared for the many challenges and threats we will face in the future.

Most Mississippians (87%) say keeping the public informed through public notices and legal advertising is an important requirement for government agencies. And the preferred method of receiving these notices is in a printed newspaper along with their associated websites.

According to a 2013 Advertising and Media Use Survey*, legal ads in printed newspapers have a much higher credibility than other media.

Over 1.5 million Mississippians read their local newspaper. Whether in print, online or on the go, newspapers are the leading source of information for Mississippi.

BE SAFE WHEN FISHING FOR SHARKS

I guess if you can't beat em, join em?... That's kinda how it goes this month with the sharks. Just about everywhere our boats are fishing, the sharks have been. From Lake Borgne, to Cat Island and all points in between, the sharks have been in full force.

Yes, they will pretty much shut down any trout bite, almost instantly. Instead of cranking the big motor, why not break out the big rods, and have some fun?

Think back to when you first got into fishing. Sharks were the ultimate inshore species to tangle with. If you are looking to "hook" youngsters into fishing, look no further.

SHORE THING FISHING REPORT

by Capt. Sonny Schindler

Trust me here, if you get a kid their first shark, you'll be the king of the world in their eyes.

If you are specifically targeting sharks, it is pretty simple this time of year. Watch for big schools of ladyfish, or pogies. There are almost always sharks nearby. We usually drift big chunks of ladyfish, mullet, pogie, white trout, etc. I'll normally free line one rod, and put one down with an ounce or two of lead.

I use a real simple rig for sharks:

- Heavy Spinning rod
- Large spinning reel (the Okuma Coronado 65 is dynamite)
- 60 pound braided line
- 100lb barrel swivel
- #9 piano wire
- 10/0 circle hook

Be careful though, some of these big fellas can reach well over 100 POUNDS. Handle with care. As always, have fun and be safe.

Don't make waves in no-wake zones

BY ERIC SPARKS
MSU EXTENSION SERVICE

BILOXI, Miss. -- In everyday life, "don't make waves" means don't cause trouble. On the water in no-wake zones, it means basically the same thing.

Wakes are waves created as vessels travel through the water. A no-wake zone is an area where vessels are expected to travel slowly to minimize wakes.

Most people think of no-wake zones as the speed bumps or school zones of the water, and rightfully so. Public safety is often the primary reason for these areas, which is why most no-wake zones are near boat launches, docks or residential areas. While safety is the reason many of these zones are established, reducing wakes also benefits waterfront property owners and the environment.

Property in no-wake zones benefits from decreased wave energy hitting the shoreline. The consistent hammering of boat wakes leads to erosion through wearing away at a bulkhead or washing away sediment from unprotected shorelines.

The presence of bulkheads or seawalls alone increases the overall energy, and subsequent erosion, along a shoreline by not allowing waves to dissipate. Instead, the waves bounce off the walls of the flat bulkhead and "ping-pong" around the water body. Large and frequent wakes magnify erosion concerns. Think of a bulkheaded water body as a bathtub. When you push water into the wall of a tub, it bounces back forcefully. Waves dissipate after hitting a gently sloped surface, such as a natural shoreline.

In fact, many waterfront property owners must install some type of shoreline protection to save their property from being eroded by boat wakes. They often use bulkheads or seawalls, which temporarily help prevent erosion on their property but increase problems on surrounding shoreline. An alternative suite of shoreline protection options is collectively called "living shorelines." These projects help dissipate wave energy while also protecting shorelines and the natural benefits they provide.

Natural shorelines around no-wake zones often look much healthier, with more vegetation. Compared with areas that have fast and frequent boat traffic, the wave energy along these natural shorelines is much closer to natural waves. This is why many no-wake zones are established in environmentally sensitive areas, such as fringing marsh and intertidal oyster beds.

Coastal wetlands formed because they were in areas with relatively low wave energy and slow-moving water. The slower the water moves, the finer the sediment. That's why sand beaches have crashing waves and muddy, mucky bayous have calm water.

With more vessel traffic and wakes in coastal wetlands, we can expect substantial amounts of erosion because those areas are not adapted to high wave energy.

It's much easier to wash away muddy sediment than sand. As coastal wetlands wash away, the natural benefits they provide go with them. Coastal wetlands are imperative to supporting seafood production, maintaining good water quality and protecting our developed coasts from storms.

Certainly, there are many reasons why no-wake zones are important. Even though these areas might slow you down, take the time to sit back, relax and enjoy the scenery as you pass through these areas. Observing the differences in shoreline characteristics caused by wakes will emphasize the importance of these areas to maintaining our prosperous coastlines.

Coast Electric, INFINITY Science Center partnership gives raptors safe nesting place

SEA COAST ECHO

Kiln, Miss. — Ospreys and other raptors now have a safe place to nest on the grounds of Infinity Science Center thanks to a partnership between Coast Electric Power Association and Infinity.

The partnership began when Joe Pettigrew, a volunteer at Infinity and a master naturalist, saw the opportunity for a nesting platform near the science center's opossum walk.

Coast Electric was asked to become a partner not only because of the cooperative's commitment to environmental efforts but because the tools and manpower needed to build and place the platform. Coast Electric staff built the platform to meet national standards and crews used equipment that typically digs holes for and sets power poles to place the nesting platform near a retaining pond on Infinity property.

According to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, ospreys often nest in the tops of dead trees and on power poles. Nesting on the tops of power poles can create hazardous conditions for the birds and for the public. Coast Electric has an avian protection plan that includes covering poles in locations ospreys tend to nest to protect the birds and the electrical system.

"Ospreys can nest in the same spot for many years so this gives the birds a safe alternative," said Coast Electric Vice President of Engineering Scott Brown, who implemented the cooperative's avian protection plan. "We are often working to cover our equipment to keep the birds away from danger, so it was great for us to be involved in a project that gives these animals a safe place to nest."

Infinity Science Center Executive Director John Wilson said the nesting area will help Infinity guests, "understand the complexity and diversity of our ecosystem." Wilson said, "We help people understand this planet and how precious it is and how everything works together. To go into space, you have to understand this planet first."

According to co-workers, "Jennifer Ramond has continuously made a significant contribution to the students and staff at DeLisle Elementary. She is hard working, well organized, and definitely committed to excellence." It is this work ethic that has earned Ramond the prestigious title of DeLisle Elementary School's Teacher of the Year.

When asked about her philosophy of education, she replied, "My goal is to instill in my students a love of reading and a desire to learn more." Dolly is a gorgeous, 2 year old German Shepherd mix, who is as sweet as she is lovely. She is a very mellow and friendly girl, both towards other dogs and towards people. At our recent adoption event at Pet Smart, Dolly loved being petted and stroked by the many children she met. She took treats very gently from them as well. She was amicable with all of her new doggie friends, and was so relaxed in the new environment. Dolly is great on a leash/harness, and is well-behaved when kenneled. We are not sure if she is house trained, but she potties as soon as she is walked, so that's a good sign. Dolly is definitely people oriented, and yearns to bond with her "someone special", or to be part of a family with children. Her gentle demeanor would make her a wonderful companion for retirees or seniors. Please stop by 7175 Texas Flat Rd, Kiln, and meet this sweet soul. We just adore her quiet, loving spirit. Call 466 4516 for more information, and visit our Facebook page, Hancock County Animal Shelter, MS, to see more pictures of Dolly, and of the many other wonderful animals looking for their forever homes.

GOD KNEW US FROM THE VERY BEGINNING

I read on a blog the other day about a young mother who is pregnant with her fourth child. Being the wife of a minister and having been raised by godly parents, this young mother has an attitude worth sharing with many people. What a Christian testimony this young lady has. Her first child was born with a small hole in her heart and since then she and her husband have extensive ultra-sounds done on their babies while in the womb. There have been no problems with children number two or three and so comes the ultra sound of the fourth baby. The doctor gave them the news that this child may have a cleft lip, which could mean a possibility of other problems such as syndromes and also a cleft palate. All of us go through trials and tribulations in our daily walk through life. How do we handle ourselves when we hear news that we don't want to hear? How do we handle situations that are totally out of our control? Where does our faith lie? Is it in the world or is it in Jesus?

Even as old as I am I still experience problems that seem to be overbearing. I often wonder sometime if I am going to make it through however the Lord has never let me down and brought me through in all situations. My faith and trust is in God and I know for sure that He is in control, not the world. We are told everyday by agnostics and atheists that your time on earth is all you have. I don't believe this and if they could feel what I feel when I accepted Jesus as my Lord and Savior, they would change their mind also. It all comes down to an outward expression of inward feeling. When the young couple came away from the doctor's office that day after the news of the fourth child, they had questions. Both knew that the only answer to all of their questions and unknowns is God. As the young mother was reading to one of her other children she was comforted by what the book and the author was saying. "So all of the questions that can't be answered we have to put to rest in Him. He knew before the foundation of the world about this child in our womb. Whether the problems with our child occurred because of genetics or environmental issues, it was no surprise to Him. I'm thankful for a good God who is sufficient in all of my surprises because of His sovereignty. We won't know much until the baby is born but we do know this fourth baby won't be the same as my "big lip" babies but when the Great Physician knits a baby together there are no mistakes." What a wonderful testimony. If only all of us could have this kind of faith in God then our world wouldn't be in such turmoil. Prayer: Our Father I pray for this young couple as they expect their fourth child. I thank you for the faithfulness and their witness. Guide them and direct them as only you know how and I pray that more people would come to know you through their example. Amen.

BY GARY ANDREWS

DAY AT THE ZOO

A visit to a zoo gives you a chance to see animals from all around the world, animals you would never see in your neighborhood. Zoos are more than places to see animals. They also help save animals from extinction.

It is believed that the first zoo was built here by Queen Hatshepsut in 1500 B.C. She collected animals from all over Africa. Circle every third letter to reveal this country.

Zoos Save Tiny Frogs

The tiny black and yellow Corroboree Frog only lives in a small area of Australia. They have been nearly wiped out due to a nasty disease. Zoos like Toronga Zoo in Sydney collect and raise the brightly colored frogs. They can now return them to the wild.

How many of these frogs can you find on this page?

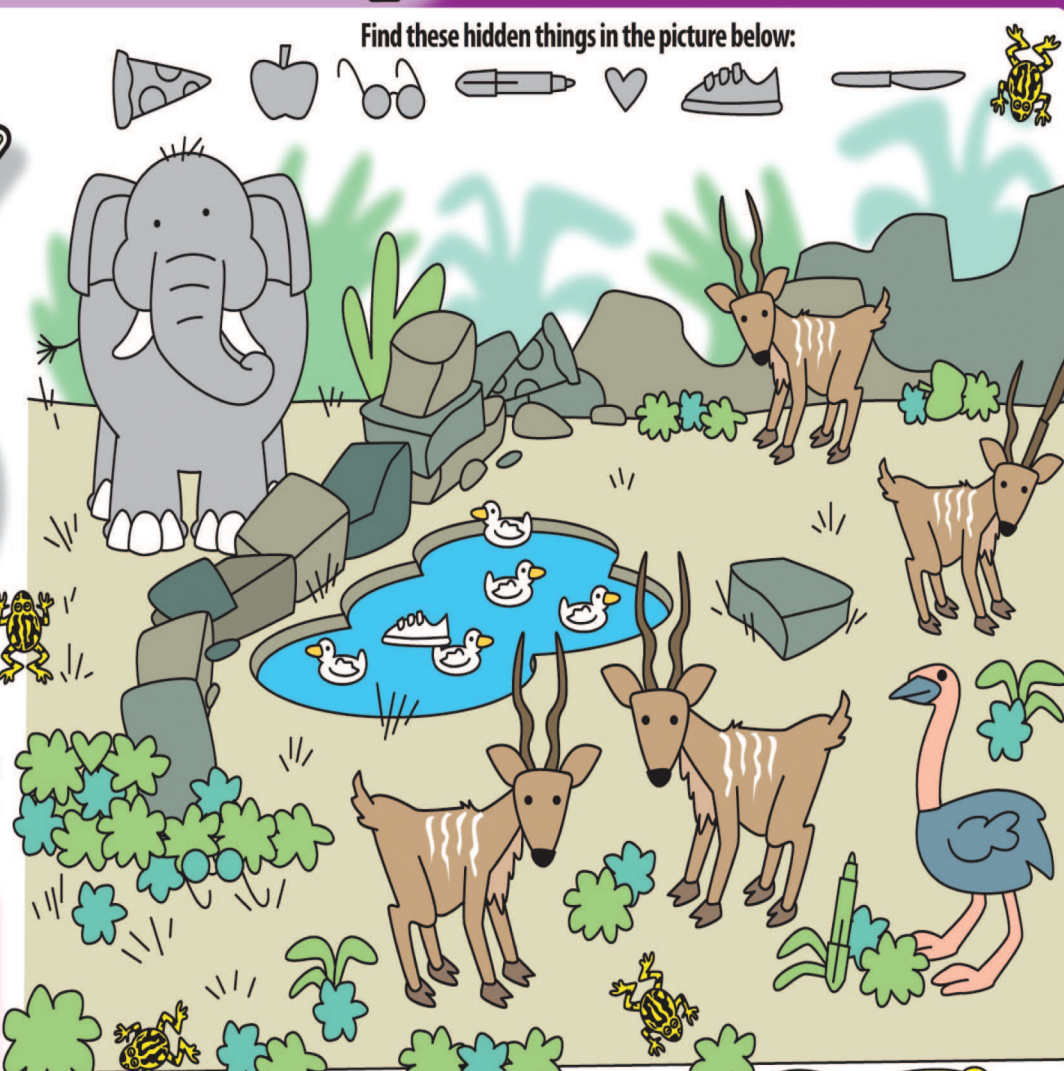

California Condor Success

In 1982, only 22 California condors were left in the wild. At that time, the San Diego Zoo started a program to raise the birds at the zoo. Many of these have been released back into the wild. Today more than 400 live in the wild.

Tiny Tortoise Saved?

One of the world's tiniest and rarest tortoises is on the edge of extinction. Scientists at the Paignton Zoo in England have managed to hatch one of the tortoise's eggs. The hatchling is only about one and a half inches long! If they can raise the little critter and manage to hatch more eggs, there may be hope for the species.

The letters on the correct path spell the name of this rare tortoise.
